

Charlie

(M/T Misa Ruzickova, translator Eliska Ruzickova)

Over a tall mountain like the Eiffel Tower
Over the sea, maybe even more
In a dragon's den with daddy lived mum Carla
Miracles have happened there before

It was spring, and flowers began slowly blooming
Nature started waking up around
On a meadow bees and beetles got to moving
Daddy dragon's napping on the ground

Ref:
Flapping his wings at me
Looks just like a plane
Keeps on getting close
He flies in sun or rain

It all happened one day in the early morning
While they piled up the horses' hay
With a bang everyone woke up to a warning
One egg started hatching, what a day

Mummy dragon, she is getting all excited
Baby girl has always been her dream
But the egg just keeps on cracking, it expanded
It might be here sooner than it seems

Ref

Peeking from the eggshell came up one big green head
Mom and dad are laughing full of joy
"Hip hip hooray let's celebrate", mummy then said
Turns out it's a lovely dragon boy

The little baby only has one head, however
Proper dragons always have much more
So they named him little Charlie for his valor,
Now he has to worry nevermore.
